

The Villian Planet

Constructed by scrap metal collected from all around the galaxy, Planet Negfor is constructed to function as one big Quaza nuclear reactor. By combining super high-voltage electricity with the magnetic energy of the planet's metal, Vorukam is able to transform the planets core of Quaza into destructive powerful Villain cores. The bigger the planet, the greater it's magnetic force, and the more evil and concentrated the Villain cores.

The Villian Planet

The Villian Fascility

instead of using some of the planet's metal to create his army of villains, They embed the Villain cores inside a jellyfish-type body with tentacles for arms.

The Villian Fascility

Vorukams plan is to implant the Villain cores into a wide range of monsters that will attach and crush every hero in the Galaxy and provide him access into the very heart of the Hero Factory so he can steal the remaining Quaza supply and rule the galaxy unchallenged.

The Villian Core

Every time a new Villain Core gets created, planet Negfor expands to nearly double its size and then - when the beam of super charged negatively charged electricity is shot into the piece of Quaza at the planet's core - suddenly contracts to less than half it's size before finally returning to it's normal state. It's these contractions that cause the increasing number of atmospheric and electrical disturbances across the universe - though, no body know their origin but Mr. Makuro.

The Core-Capsule

Once deployed on a planet in the galaxy, these evil jellybrains construct themselves a body from the surrounding elements (ice, rock, metal etc.) and steal the raw elemental powers such as ice, fire and lightning and use them as weapons.

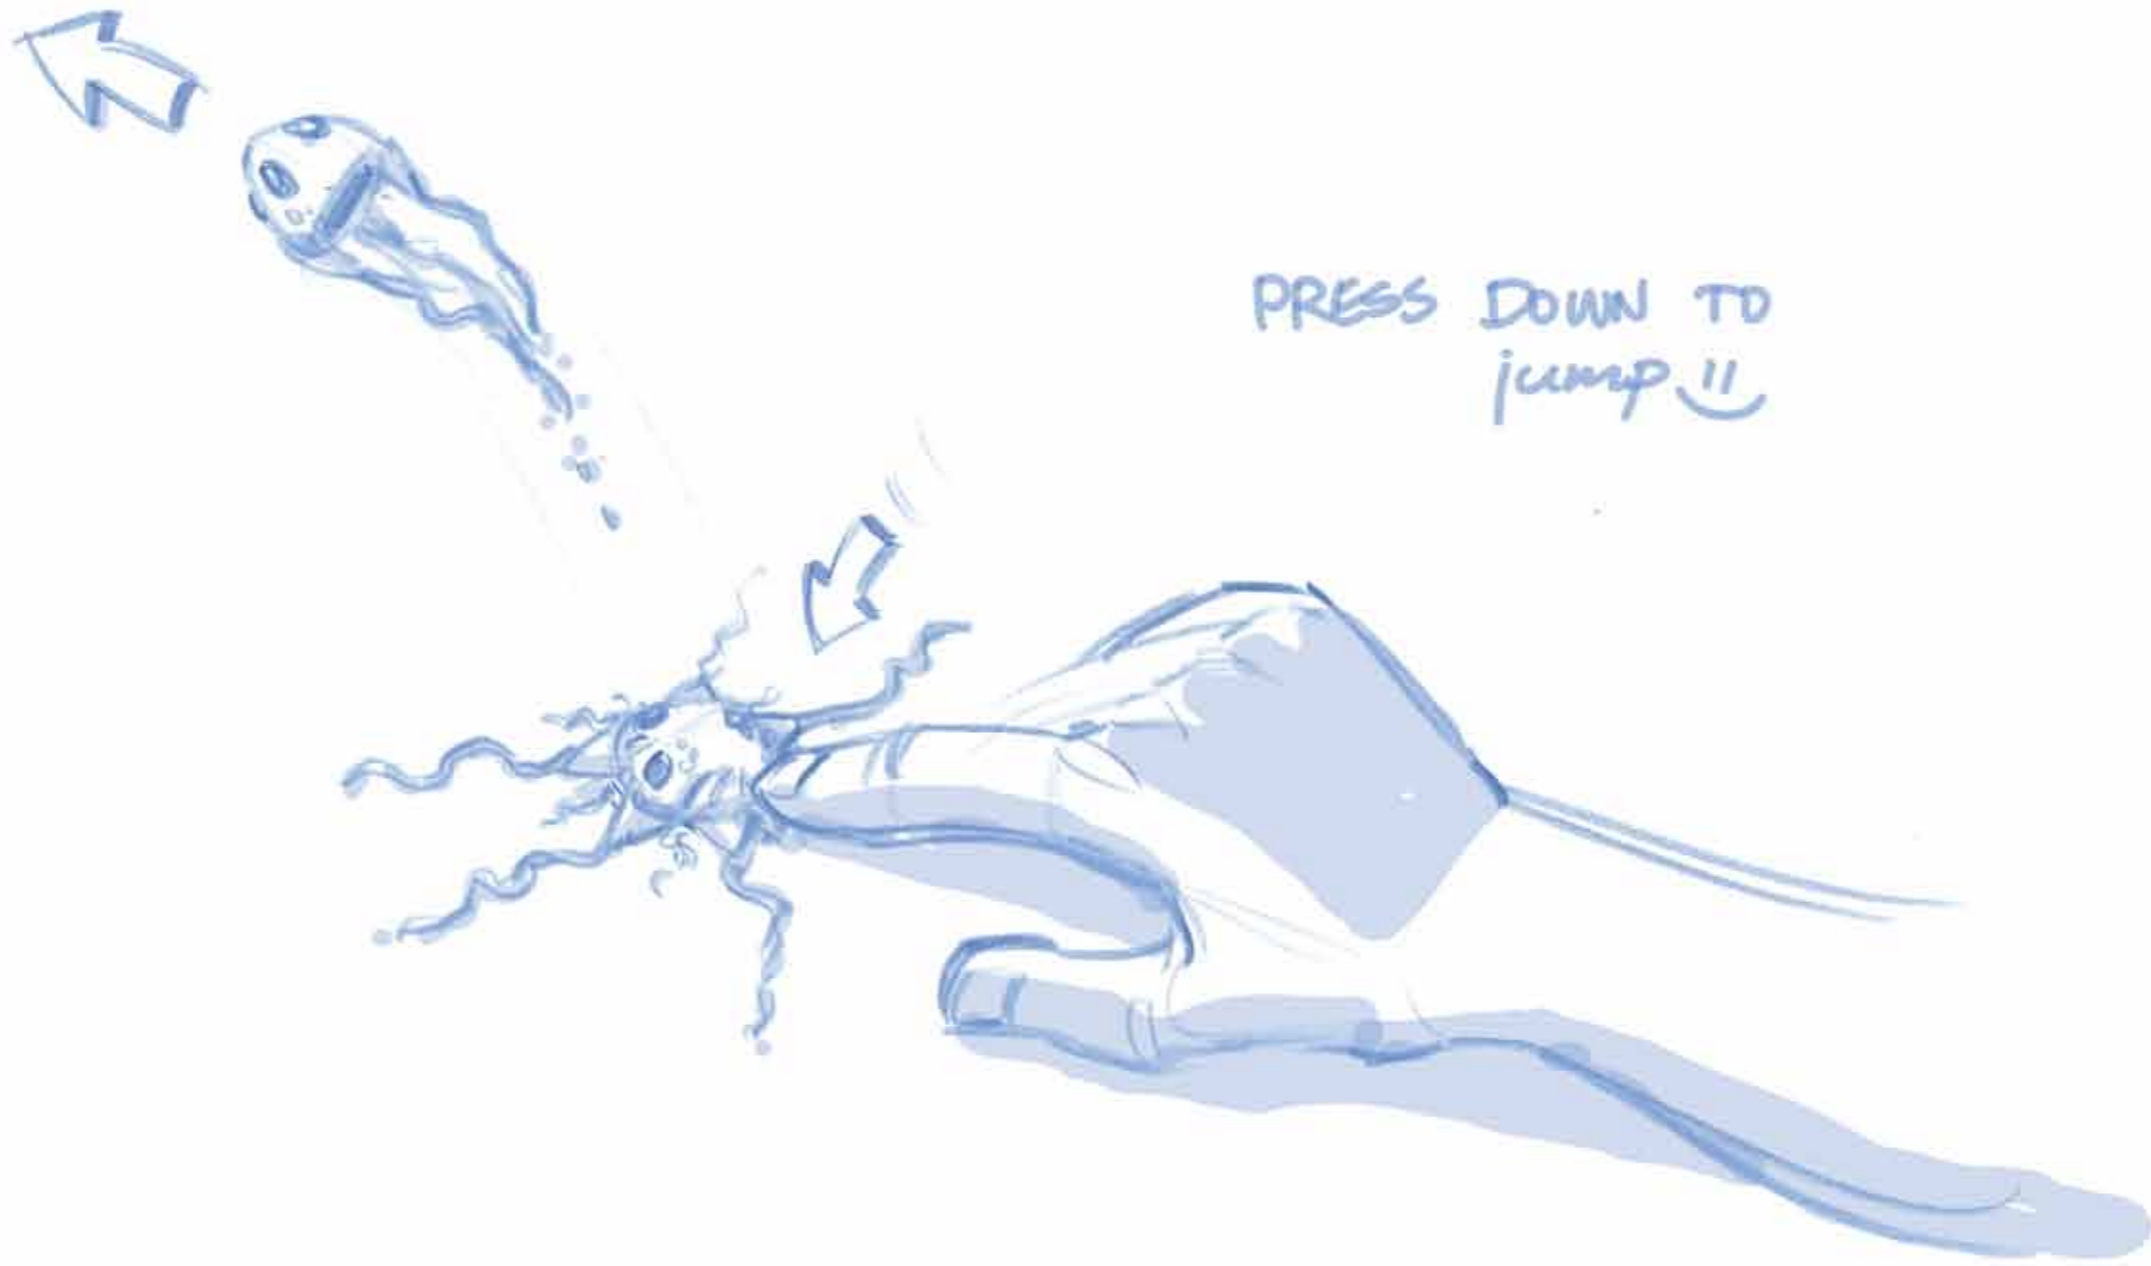

The Villian Planet

The Core-Capsule

The Core-Capsule

The Core-Capsule early Concept

Vorukam - The Villian Boss

Vorukam - The Villian Boss early Concept

Vorukam - The Villian Boss early Concept

